TOM WATSON CAUSING ISSUE

Plan to Indict Georgia Editor Will Be Vigorously Resisted

GEORGIANS IN ARMS

Delegation Visits Department of Justice in Washington, But Fail to Obtain Assurances.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Members of the Georgia delegation in Congress are agitated over the prospect that the Department of Justice will go outside of the State in an attempt to get an indictment against Thomas E. Watson for circulating alleged obscene matter relating to the Leo M. Frank case through the mails.

Hearing of the plans of the department, the Georgia members have vigorously protested to the Attorney General that if the department goes outside of the State to seek this indictment it is reflection on the State, and that Mr. Watson, author, publisher, and former member of Congress, is entitled to trial within his own State.

Congressman Tribble, one of the protesting members of the delegation, said today that the action contemplated by the Department of Justice is an "outrageous proceeding and would be a stigma on the name of the State of Georgia."

All the Georgia members of the House went to the Department of Justice yesterday to register a vig[illegible] were told by Assistant Attorney General Wallace that the department contemplated proceeding against Mr. Watson in some other State, and the only question which remains to be settled is where the indictment shall be brought. The inference was that the department believes a fair trial cannot be had in Georgia in a matter concerning Watson and the Frank case.

A member of the Georgia delegation said today that no satisfaction was obtained at the Department of Justice concerning the protest, and the Georgians were thoroughly worked up over the situation this morning.

Mr. Watson once a political power in Georgia and still retaining considerable influence, was recently tried in the courts there for alleged misuse of the mail in circulating matter reflecting on the Catholic church. After a lengthy trial at Augusta, the jury was unable to agree, and a mistrial was declared. It was reported that the jury stood 10 to 2 for acquittal.

While discussing this case at the Department of Justice recently, Mr. Tribble learned that the law branch of the Government contemplated proceeding against Mr. Watson on another ground—circulation of alleged indecent matter in connection with the Leo M. Frank case. In this case Watson has taken a stand bitterly inimical to Frank.

Members of the Georgia delegation think the indictment should be returned in Georgia, if at all. They say they are not taking sides one way or the other as to merits of the case itself but they are severely critical of the Department of Justice for suggesting trial outside of the State of Georgia. The department thinks it can proceed in any juridiction where the alleged obscene publications have been circulated.

"All the members of the delegation are united on this question," said Mr. Tribble today. "We think it is an outrage that the Government should say to our State that it is feared a fair trial cannot be had if Mr. Watson is indicted. I have done my utmost for Mr. Watson and to uphold the integrity of my State in this matter and will continue to use every honorable and legitimate method to prevent this unheard of proceeding. If a resolution of inquiry will do good I will introduce that.

RAIDS ON ENGLANDS.

Fifty-nine Killed and 101 Injured by Bombs From Zeppelins.

London, Feb. 3.—Fifty-nine persons were killed and 101 wounded by bombs thrown from the Zeppelins which raided England on Monday night, according to an official statement, by the war office.

As usual in these raids, a remarkable proportion of the victims were women and children. Of the whole number killed twenty were women and six children. The women and children injured actually outnumber the men.

The following is a description of the raids as witnessed by a correspondent in a Staffordshire town;

"The first bomb was dropped near a moving picture theater, which was brilliantly illuminated. For a certain period the Zeppelin circled about the town at the speed of an express train. Many people rushed out, but there was no panic.

"Both explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped. Sometime was lost before the neighborhood was darkened. The airship appeared to have no difficulty in dropping bombs in the vicinity of the large buildings.

"In a meeting house a mission for women was proceeding. A woman missionary was standing, Bible in hand, addressing 200 women and girls when a bomb dropped within twenty feet of the mission room, which was of wood. There was a blinding flash and then all was darkness.

"The missionary was struck by a huge fragment of shell and killed instantly. Another woman and a young girl were killed. Screams of the injured were heard and many were trampled in the confusion.

"A near-by church and the vicarage were partly wrecked, bomb splinters boring holes in the solid masonry.

"Some of the victims were killed as they hurried through the streets. A woman and her child lost their lives together. Both the legs of another woman were blown off.

"A man hearing the whirr of the [illegible] was going [illegible] garden to watch the airships when a bomb fell at his feet. A fragment struck his head and he died immediately. His child who was following him was also struck. The boy ran back to the house, crying to his mother:

"'They killed by daddy. Look what they done to me."

"The boy's left arm was severed as with a knife.

"A woman nursing a baby was buried up to her neck in debris, only her face being visible. She was badly crushed but alive. A heavy beam had fallen across her body, protecting her. The child was dead.

"A church and a congregational chapel were badly damaged, a parish room was wrecked and fourteen houses were demolished and a great number damaged."

KILLED BY A BARBER

Knight of the Razor Was About to be Committed for Debt.

Mobile, Ala. Feb. 3—Col. William J. Slack, senior partner of the law firm of Slack and Franco, of Belize, British Honduras, legal representative of the Orr-Laubenheimer Steamship Company of this city, one of the most prominent men in British Honduras and a leading figure in the military and political life of the colony; Thos. H. Barker, his clerk, and Police Constable Augustus Burgess were shot and killed by Thomas Johnston, a barber, on January 25, according to news received here.

Johnson was arrested after resisting arrest and is now in jail at Belize. Johnston was about to be committed for debt and went to the law office of the firm mentioned, and when Slack refused to talk with him at once shot him through both lungs and the heart death resulting instantly.

Barker tried to assist Col. Slack, and Johnston shot him dead through the heart, The constable rushed in the building to arrest the murderer, but he was met by a fusillade of bullets and fell mortally wounded and died in a short time.

OCEAN CABLE DISABLED

London, Feb. 3—Seven of Europe's cables to America have been mysteriously put out of business.

For more than a month they have been lying at the bottom of the ocean, temporarily useless, while the remaining ones are overburdened with the great mass of communications passing daily between the two continents.

DISASTER ON OHIO RIVER

Ten Persons Are Killed and Four Injured By an Explosion

CAPTAIN AMONG LOST

Bodies of Many Victims Were Hurled Ashore—Vessel, Valued at $30,000, is Sunk.

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 3—Ten people were killed and four seriously injured by the explosion of the boilers on the towboat Sam Brown, of Pittsburgh, in the Ohio river here.

All of the injured are expected to recover.

The explosion is believed to have been due to forcing cold water into the boilers, which had been allowed to become nearly dry during the night while the boat was laid up at the bank. She was on her way south from Kanawha river with a big tow of coal. She stopped here Tuesday night to take on seven barges from the tipple of the Island Creek Coal Company.

Ben J. Williams, mate, the senior surviving officer, was on the tow when the explosion occurred. He was making ready, he said to cast off when the boilers blew up. He says he last saw Captain Blair, who had commanded the boat for many years, on the upper deck, and it is believed that it was his body which was hurled several hundred feet into the air and of which searchers failed to find any trace.

The explosion was a terrific one After the boilers blew up, the boat broke loose from her tow and drifted down stream, but filled rapidly and sank within three minutes. Many of the crew were killed instantly. That the death list was not greater was due to the presence of many of the deck hands on the tow.

Three of the survivors hung to the wreck until help came. Others were thrown into the river and few seized life-preservers before taking the icy plunge.

The Huntington-Chesapeake ferryboat City of Huntington hurried to the wreck and was followed quickly by the Katharine Davis, a towboat belonging to the Island Creek Coal Company. Launches and skiffs put out from various points along the river and in a little while all the survivors had been brought to Huntington.

The work of listing the members of the crew was easy since the boat's record was in the big steel safe, which was blown ashore.

The body of William Hysor, the steward, was blown ashore, where it was found headless and mangled.

The body of Josephine Zehnder was found in the wreckage several hours after the explosion. The Katherine Davis on one of her return trips from the wreck brought in a shoe, in which was still incased a man's foot.

The Sam Brown was owned by the Monongahela Consolidated Coal Company. She was valued at $35,000. Some of the barges in the big tow were on the point of sinking yesterday afternoon, but were saved by the Val P. Collins, another Island Creek towboat, which went to the rescue with her pumps.

Fruit Is In Danger

Great danger is threatened to all kinds of fruit in August county, by the continued warm, damp weather, which has prevailed for the past two weeks. Already great damages has been done to peach trees, and if the present warm spell is succeeded by a very low temperature the apple crop will be in serious danger. Buds on peach and apple trees began to swell during the warm weather back in December, and this condition has been growing during the recent damp, warm weather, in January. Orchardists and fruit growers generally are ecoming very apprehensive for the safety of the apple crop for 1916.

JUDGE SIMS IS ELECTED.

Joint Session of Senate and House Confirms Action of Democratic Caucus.

Richmond, Feg. 3.—By a unanimous vote of both houses of the General Assembly, Judge Frederick Wilmer Sims, of Louisa, was yesterday elected to the State Supreme Court bench for a 12 year term, beginning February 1, 1917. He will succeed Judge James Keith, who will retire at the expiration of his term on January 31, 1917. The election confirmed the nomination of Judge Sims by the Democratic caucus.

Judge Sims was nominated for election by Delegate Browning, of Orange. Among those who seconded the nomination was Delegate Gordon, of Louisa; who was affiliated with the faction that supported his opponent. Mr. Gordon's action in seconding the nomination of Judge Sims yesterday was received by the House with a round of applause.

Both houses suspended the regular order of business at 12:15 o'clock to go into the election of judges nominated by the caucus whose terms expire on February 1, 1917, The following were elected for new terms of eight years:

Judge P. H. Dillard, Rocky Mount, Thirtieth Circuit.

Judge A. E. King of the Corporation Court of Roanoke.

Judge Ernest H. Wells, Richmond, Hustings Court, Part II.

Judge T. J. Barham, of the Corporation Court of Newport News.

Governor Stuart notified the General Assemly that he had appointed Judge John T. Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, to succeed himself as judge of the corporation court of that city. Because of illness, he had failed to qualify in time for the new term to which he was elected by the General Assembly of 1914. Both houses yesterday confirmed the Governor's appointment and elected Judge Goolrick for a new term of eight years, beginning February 1, 1915.

Refused to Concur

By a vote of 36 to 1, the Senate yesterday refused to concur in the House amendment to Senator Thornton's bills, vested in the trial judge the power to say whether or not an ex-convict, once or twice before convicted of a felony in the United States and sent to the penitentiary, shall serve additional time on subsequent convictions. As drafted by Senator Thornton, the bills make it discretionary with the judge only whether a felon must serve the additional five years prescribed by the Code on a second conviction or the life term on the third and susequent convictions

CANNON OFFERS AMENDMENTS

Constitutional Defects in Prohibition Bill Are Removed

SUBJECT TO STUART

Said to be Purpose to Pass Best Bill Possible and Put Responsibility on Governor.

Richmond, Feb. 3.—Amendments to the Mapp prohibition bill offered yesterday by Rev. James Cannon, jr., at the public discussion of the measure before the Senate and House Committees on Moral and Social Welfare will, if adopted, materially lessen the tension between the prohibition majority and Governor Stuart on the question of creating the new office of State commissioner of moral welfare.

The amendments place the proposed new department under the direct control of the Governor, giving him the power to suspend the commissioner for misconduct, neglect of duty or acts performed without authority of law. In case of such suspension, the Governor is given authority to fill the vacancy until the next meeting of the General Assembly ,which is to determine whether the commissioner so suspended shall be reinstated or permanently removed.

Richmond, Feb. 3—In an opinion delivered yesterday Attorney General Pollard holds that Dr. James Cannon of the Anti-Saloon League, is wrong in his contention that the proposed moral welfare commissioner, as created in the prohibition bill, would be under the Governor, as other department heads are under the Governor.

The Attorney General maintains that the Governor is right in his contention against the proposed moral welfare commissioner.

Dr. Cannon and other Anti-Saloon leaders have conferred and have been forced to an agreement, it is said, whereby it will be necessary for the Mapp bill to be so amended as to specifically put the proposed commissioner under the Governor.

Otherwise, it is said, the bill would be unconstitutional, though even if the commissioner is specifically put under the chief executive Governor Stuart still may withhold his endorsement.

Unless there is a decided change of plans, the difference between the prohibition forces and the Governor on the proposition to provide for a commissioner to enforce the new laws dealing with the issue which are now before the Legislature will come to a show down.

Either the members of the General assembly—certainly that element in favor of the commissioner feature—or the Governor will have to back water.

On Tuesday a member of the Senate declared that so far as he had been advised there had been no change whatever in the plans of the prohibitionists as regarded the commissioner feature in the prohibition bill. He said that plans were to "stnad pat" and to pass the bill and to send it right up to the Governor, leaving him responsible for its rejection or enactment.

This gentleman did not hesitate to say that there were not enough votes in the Senate to pass the bill over the veto of the Governor, but that the bill would be enacted and sent to the Governor, and that on him would rest full and complete responsibility for the defeat of the measure.

And there is no question that the Governor will prevent the naming of the commissioner by the General Assembly which will have to deal with the enforcement of the laws of the State. No Governor has had such an officer in the past, and Governor Stuart seemingly does not propose to have any such innovation while he is in the executive office.

In other words, if the General Assembly determines to "take the bull by the horns" and pass the bill it will be mere wasting of time. It will serve to arouse the antagonism of the friends of Governor Stuart, who has always said that he would sign a prohibition bill, but a prohibition bill was not contemplated that would create new offices with expensive salaries and costs.

With that feature eliminated the Governor would doubtless sign the bill.

It is understood that the Mapp bill will be reported as early as possible that it will be put on the calendar and given every possible facility for passage, and then it will go to the Governor. When that is done and it comes back to the Legislature, there will be time enough for the amending of the law and enacting another measure and sending that to the Governor, so it will be made a law before the Legislature shall have adjourned.

The member of the General Assembly who discussed the bill said that it was the intention to provide for the commissioner and to have the Governor reject that, if he desired, and then to enact such a measure as will carry the views of the great majority of the members of the Senate and House—"get the best bill we can," as he said.

The "ouster" bill presented Tuesday may become a law, but if it does it will be after running the gauntlet of debate, criticism and disfavor of many Senators.

The bill is intended to force every man in the government of the State, counties and cities to be on the job at all times to enforce prohibition and to see that the laws are rigidly enforced.

The Attorney for the Commonwealth will be the prohibition commissioner in all proceedings. Complaint against any officer must be made to the judge of the court of the county or city in vacation or term time, in writing, and a copy must be furnished to the officer and a hearing had in five to ten days.

The poasibilities under this bill are enormous, and as it gives to the commissioner powers which are very broad there will have to be some explanations of the several drastic provisions before it becomes a law.

Considerable interest was shown yesterday over the printed report that Attorney-General John Garland Pollard might be named as prohibition commissioner, and that there would be no separate office or department created. When shown the article and asked for a statement on the subject yesterday afternoon. Mr. Pollard declined to comment upon the article, though he read it with evident interest and a broad smile.

Mr. Pollard is an announced candidate for Governor of Virginia.

BOMBS ON THE APPAM.

Germans Were to Destroy Steamer If Overhanded by Enemy's Ships.

After a 16 days voyage fraught with constant danger of being blown to atoms at most any moment by the discharge of bombs hidden in vulnerable parts in the steamer which could be automatically and simultaneously discharged from the pilot house at the approach of a belligerent war vessel and in danger of attack by war vessels of the allies, 451 people, 15 women and 436 men, arrived in Hampton Roads Tuesday on the former British steamer Appam which was brought into port by a German prize crew.

It was learned that four or five powerful bombs had been hidden in the Appam's hold, all of which could have been discharged from the pilot house at the slightest trouble. These bombs are said to have been placed on the steamer to blow her up in case she was overtaken by a war vessel or if the people on board had attempted to mutiny and take possession of the steamer from the German prize crew.

It is said that the life boats on the Appam were kept in constant readiness to be launched at any moment to take care of the passengers in case it became necessary to blow her up.

From the Appam yesterday came another epic of the sea. It was a story of the battle between the German commerce raider Moewe and the Australian merchant ship Clan MacTavish in which the English vessel was finally sent to the bottom with 25 of her men dead, but the four surviving members of her crew still fighting. Six members of the Moewe's crew were killed during the fight with the Clan MacTavish, according to a note dropped from the porthole of the Appam by O. H. Oliver, second steward of the liner.

OBJECTIONS MAY BE ELIMINATED

Proposal to Put Time Limit on Collection of Omitted Taxes

WOULD EXEMPT RYAN

Many Others in State Directly Interested in Plan Soon to Be Before the Legislature.

Richmond, Feb. 3.—A proposal that its originators and many prominent attorneys claim will eliminate constitutional objections has been made for exempting property owners from payment of omitted taxes for the period prior to 1910 or any other year that may be agreed upon.

While this proposal, if carried out, will exempt Thomas F. Ryan, from payment of a large portion of the $200,000 he now owes the state, its advocates declare that it also exempts others and that an honorable government has no right to insist upon its pound of flesh in the case of one man and not of the others.

The plan, in brief, is to declare by statute that assessments of more than a certain number of years standing must be presumed to be correct. In other words, although the state constitution declares that the statute of limitations shall not be applied to the collection of taxes, to make the first assessment presumptive evidence of its correctness after it has stood for a number of years would debar the state from proving its incorrectness by any method should it elect to sue for collection. With such a law on the statute books, however, it is declared, suit would not even be brought.

The attorney, a former member of the General Assembly, who proposes the incorporation of such a clause in the omitted tax bills prepared by Senators West and Addison, admits that if five years should be made the limit, Mr. Ryan, who has been re-assessed back for 12 years, would not have to pay on the new assessments prior to 1911. In other words, he would escape payment of considerably more than half the $200,000 he now owes the state in back taxes. However, he declared, this could be remedied by placing the limit at 12 years. "If the General Assembly does not wish to do this and collect from everyone," he said, "it can not consistently ask that Mr. Ryan pay. All should be treated alike."

CHARGES EXTRAVAGANCE.

Mann Arraigns Officials of the Department of Agriculture.

Washington, Feb. 2. —Republican Leader Mann, speaking in the House yesterday on the Urgent Deficiency bill, arraigned Department of Agriculture officials and others for what he declared was an "almost startling" extravagance in the use of public funds for traveling expenses.

He quotes from a department report showing that items paid out of the $2,500,000 emergency appropriation for fighting the hoof-and-mouth disease included trips of agents "to consult turkey and guinea breeders," "to attend a meeting of potato growers at Bangor, Main," "to deliver an address on the effect of skimmed milk on the quality of Swiss cheese," and "to study preparation of wools for market and supervise shearing of the Government flocks at Laramie, Wyo."

Allowances of more than $500 each for trips made to California by two Civil Service Commissioners during the San Francisco Exposition also were cited.

"I do not know who is to blame," said Mr. Mann, "but when we are asked to make an emergency appropriation of a large sum for one purpose it is a gross violation of the proprieties, if not of the law, to seize that fund immediately and send men from Washington traveling all over the United States on other matters."

The bill finally was sent to conference.

MARBURY OUT OF RACE

Thomas A. Fisher, Present Incumbent, and Jas. M. Duncan Only Candidates For Mayoralty.

City councilman Frank F. Marbury who several months ago announced his candidacy for mayor of the City of Alexandria in the Democratic primary to be held on April 4th issued a statement today in which he withdrew from the race, leaving the contest between Mayor Thomas A. Fisher, the incumbent, who is a candidate to succeed himself and James M. Duncan.

Mr. Marbury made the following statement: "I have withdrawn from the mayoralty race in order to become a candidate for the board of aldermen from the first war, and if elected to that office. I expect to be a candidate for the presidency of the board when it organizes next September. I was a member of the board of Aldermen for a number of years and president of the board until two years ago, and the work was thoroughly congenial to me. My retirement was due to my removal to the first ward, and now that the opportunity presents itself, owing to the retirement of Messrs. Hill and Field from the board of aldermen, I feel that I can do no better service to the city of Alexandria in promoting a conservative management of the city's affairs than by offering to take up my old work in the board of aldermen. I have been gratified by the many kind offers of support from my friends since I announced myself for Mayor, and desire to express to them my most cordial appreciation."

The City Democratic committee will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the office of Howard W. Smith, 107 north Fairfax street, for the purpose of receiving the petitions of candidates for Mayor and members of city council. So far as is known there will be only one contest outside of the mayoralty race and that in the second ward where there will be three candidates for the common council, Henry K. Field, R. D. Brumback and Jerome Kaufmann. Mr. Field is at present the president of the board of aldermen, but must leave that body at the expiration of his term on account of his removal to the second ward, Mr Brumback is a candidate to succeed himself and Mr. Kaufmann is a new entry in the race.

The probable ticket will be as follows: For Mayor, Thomas A. Fisher and James M. Duncan.

First ward—Board of Aldermen, F. W. Marbury; Common Council, Howard W. Smith and Taylor Burke.

Second ward—Board of Aldermen. W. W. Ballenger; Common Council. H. K. Field, R. D. Brumback and Jerome Kaufmann.

Third ward—Board of Aldermen, John T. Harrison; Common Council H. R. Burke and A. J. Pohl.

Fourth ward—Board of Aldermen. J. B. Fitzgerald; Common Council, Albert Bryan and C. S. Ballenger.

As will be seen from this ticket Howard W. Smith, at present president of the Common Council, now representing the second ward will be a candidate from the first ward. John T. Harrison, now a member of Common Council from the third ward, will be a candidate for the Board of Aldermen from the same ward, and H. R. Burke, now representing the first ward in council will be a candidate for council from the third war.

Roumania and Greece have it is stated signed a treaty by which neither shall abandon its neutrality without the consent of the other.

QUANTICO PURCHASES

Reported That Large Fertilizer Factory is to be Constructed in Prince William Village

A dispatch from Fredericksburg says it is stated on what is elieved to be good authority that the recent purchase of the large tract of land at Quantico was not made for the Du Pont Company, but was bought for the American Agricultural Chemical Company, a large corporation with headquarters in New York. It in further reported that an extensive fertilizer manufacturing plant will be established on the property.

The recent extensive purchases of land at Quantico have caused many reports to be spread as to the purpose of the purchasers. It was at first believed by many that a large munitions plant was to be constructed upon the property by the Du Pont Company while others were equally sure the International Harvester Company was interested in the deal and that a large farm implement manufactory was to be built there. The report now in circulation in Fredericksburg may not be equally as apocryphal. No one hereabouts has, so far, been able to state positively what is to be the outcome of the deal.

Quantico lies about halfway between Alexandria and Fredericksburg, and should any large plant be located at that place it will add materially to the commercial importance of both cities.

GERMANY BEWILDERED

President Wilson's Speeches Cause Uneasiness in the Fatherland

Berlin, Feb. 2—After being apparently settled to the satisfaction of both governments, the sinking of the Lusitania once more looms on the horizon of international tranquility to disturb to the straining point the relations between the United States and Germany.

Until yesterday the feeling prevailed in Germany that the matter of the Lusitania as an element of friction had become a thing of the past. The Germans, however, sure they may have been of the justice of the deed as measured by rights and principles, have never been proud of sinking the Cunarder with the attendant loss of neutral lives.

It may be said with absolute and unquestioned authority that Germany was thankful when announcement was made that the controversy with America had been adjudicated by the German government agreeing to make full reparation for the neutral loss entailed, that it as full reparation as was possible, where the loss of human lives was involved.

Suddenly a new situation of immense gravity exists by news of a hitch in the negotiations, and to complicate matters, press reports of an address by President Wilson in which he declared, or was reported to have declared, that the United States must be prepared for war tomorrow—not the day after tomorrow, but tomorrow.

According to reports that reached Germany, the President made it clear that he was not using a figure of speech, but was speaking of war as a possible pending actuality.

The attitude of the German empire as expressed by the best thought of its people may be said to be one of bewilderment, not yet of aggressive hostility, but of puzzled wonderment as to the motives of the United States.

BERG AND DECATUR.

The capture of the British steamer Appam and the bringing of the prize across the Atlantic Ocean to Norfolk by Lieutenant Berg of the German navy, has naturally attracted great attention, as it was a gallant deed. But during the career of the United States skill and daring equally as wonderful have been displayed by American naval officers. The lives of John Paul Jones, Semmes of the Alabama, Maffitt of the Florida, and Waddill, of the Shenandoah, show that this country has had, and doubtless now has, naval geniuses.

The career of Stephen Decatur affords as many instances of bravery as will ever adorn the crown of Lieutenant Berg. This truly great naval officer, after passing through many thrilling adventures and dangers, laid down his life upon the so-called field of honor in 1820 at Bladensburg, not far from Alexandria, both places being in the District of Columbia at that time.

One of the most thrilling and successful naval achievements in the world's history was the capture and burning of the former United States frigate Philadelphia in the bay of Tripoli in the early part of the last century. This feat was accomplished by Decatur. The United States and Tripoli were at war at that time, and during an engagement the Tripolitans had captured the American vessel and carried her into port. After having converted the prize into a Tripolitan war vessel, she was moored off the city. It was important for the Americans to recover the ship or destroy it. It being impossible to regain possession of the war vessel, Decatur formulated a plan to destroy it. Embarking in a fishing boat with a corporal's guard of men he sailed into the bay of Tripoli in the night and steered directly for the Philadelphia. Upon drawing near the guard on the captured ship hailed the fishing boat and it was ordered to anchor. Decatur replied that he had lost his anchor in a storm. The Tripolitans, thoughtlessly, allowed the boat to draw near, and in less time than it takes to tell it the Americans had gained the deck when a battle with pistols and cutlasess took place. Decatur and his men were victorious, and after setting fire to the Philadelphia they embarked in the fishing boat and moved off. In a few minutes the former American frigate was a mass of flames and the cannon being loaded and the ship lying in a position facing the city a terrible but short-lived bombardment of the Tripolitan capital followed.

The war with Tripoli was caused by the acts of pirates on the Barbary coast. These freebooters had for many years preyed upon the commerce of the Mediterranean. They captured ships of all nations and sold passengers and crews into slavery, or held them for ransom. Strange to say, the principal nations of the earth paid tribute to those fiends in order to keep them attacking their ships. The United States had also been meeting these unjust demands until the cry, "Not one cent for tribute, but millions for defense," was raised and the war with Tripoli followed.

HALF A CENTURY REMINISCENCE.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch publishes almost daily clippings from its files half a century ago. Among those of today is the following:

A meeting of "truly loyal" citizens was held in Alexandria day before yesterday, having for its object the memoralizing of Congress to put Virginia back into territorial condition, on the pretext that the acts of the civil authoriies render such course necessary. Judge Underwood presided, and a Washingon negro, named Brown acted as secretary. Speeches favoring the memorial were made by Dr. Watson, L. Hill, George Tucker, William Arnold, John Hawxhurst, Lewis McKenzie and B. W. Hunter. The memorial was, of course, adopted and then resolutions severely censuring Governor Pierpoint and denouncing the present Legislature were passed. One speaker said he made a special trip to Richmond, at his own expense, to request Governor Pierpoint to resign and the Governor politely declined.

The Alexandrians mentioned above have long since paid the debt of nature. This clipping brings to mind many occurrences in Alexandria half a century ago, and extracts from the files of the Alexandria Gazette in 1866 would afford interesting reading, especially to our own people. Alexandrians native and to the manner born who had survived the fortunes of war had returned to their native homes and found the old town in the hands of carpetbaggers and such of their own fellow-citizens whose political predilections were with the cause of the American union. The ouster law (unwritten at that time) was put in force, and before the close of 1866 the steam roller had eliminated the undesirables. The latter were incensed and talked much of what they had done for the city during the war period and smarted over the fact that their tenure of office was at an end. Many of this disgruntled class held meetings, generally on star chamber principles, but in some way little birds brought the proceedings to the Gazette and they were published in extenso. At times meetings were held in the U. S. District Court room, upper story of the postoffice building, and it required as many credentials to get in as might have been demanded of members of the Sons of Malta. Threats were made at times to throw the Gazette reporter out of one of the windows were he caught in the conclave. He generally got there, however, and the readers of the paper were apprised of what was going on.

OCEAN TELEGRAPH LINES DISABLED.

It is stated that seven telegraph cables linking the American and European continents have recently been mysteriously disabled. The remaining lines are overburdened with the great demands made upon them.

No charge is made against either of the present belligerents, but it is suspected that one of the warring nations is responsible for present conditions.

War is no respector of sentiment. The Atlantic telegraph cables have been the pride of the world for over a half a century, and any act calculated to damage them in any way has been looked upon by civilization as a crime akin to that of Ephesia temple burning.

Nearly fifty-eight years ago, to the joy of the world, it was found that Newfoundland could talk with Ireland over a cable which had been laid across the Atlantic Ocean. James Buchanan, then President of the United States, sent a message of congratulation to Queen Victoria. The latter sent a suitable response to our executive.

This cable, it will be remembered, was laid by the United States frigate Niagara and the Her Brittanic, Majesty's frigate Agamemnon. It remained in working order about two weeks, and no attempt to relay the cable was made until 1866, when the historic Great Eastern laid it successfully. This marvel of the age, so long has subsequently been augmented by other cables. To disturb one of these lines should be classed as a crime against the inventive spirit of our wonderful age.

According to Berlin newspapers, a new order was put in force on February 1, under which the greater part of all products of the textile industry was confiscated.

GOVERNOR STANDS FIRM.

(Richmond Times-Dispatch.)

There is no longer any excuse for misunderstanding Governor Stuart's position as to the proposed commissioner of moral welfare, the office created in the prohibition bill introduced by Senator Mapp, In his letter to J. W. Hougn, of Norfolk, the Governor says he will oppose this and all other efforts to emphasize his duty while minimizing his power, to see that the laws of the State are faithfully executed.

The letter makes it clear that the Mapp bill strips the Governor of authority to the very limit of the constitutional clause describing his functions. Under that measure he would have less right to control the actions of the commissioner of moral welfare than he has to control the action of the Attorney-General, although the latter is elected by the people of the whole State and the former is to be chosen by the Legislature.

That the Governor will use, if necessary, the veto power is indicated decisively.

The Governor is the constituted authority to enforce the laws, and he should be permitted and expected and provided with the power and the means to do his duty. That he will do his duty nobody has ventured to express a doubt.

NEWS OF THE DAY

A Berlin dispatch reports that the German government will shortly levy a war tax on bachelors.

A dispatch from Constantinople states that the heir apparent to the Turkish throne, Prince Yussuf Izzedeen has committed suicide by opening his arteries.

A distinct earthquake shock was felt at Schenectady, N. Y., at 11:25 last night. Reports from all sections of the country showed houses were shaken, windows and dishes smashed and persons thrown out of bed.

In the face of bitter opposition interposed by Democrats from cotton-mill towns in the South, the House yesterday, by a vote of 337 to 46, passed the Keating bill, prohibiting shipment in interstate commerce of products made by child labor.

Oscar Ray Olinger, 19 years old, a freshman of Gallaudet College, Kendall Green, Washington, who disappeared from his room at the college Sunday night, was found dead in the Sellbach Hotel, Louisville, Ky., yesterday, apparently a suicide.

J. P. Morgan quietly sailed from New York for Europe yesterday evening, presumably to arrange a large French loan in the United States. This loan will range from $100,000,000 to $260,000,000. It will be secured by collateral.

Aviator Frank Burnside, several days ago attained an average speed of ninety-five miles an hour at Ithaca, N. Y., The record was made in a Thomas military tractor biplane over a measured half-mile course. Mr. Burnside's speed averaged a mile in thirty-eight seconds.

The new Japanese steamer Takata Maru, in collision Tuesday night with the American oil tank steamer Silver Shell about 200 miles southeast of Cape Race, N. F., was abandoned in a sinking condition after the crew was transferred to the Silver Shell, according to a wireless message received in New York last night.

Christ McAlee, a well-known resident of Johnsonburg, Pa., who was shot by his daughter Susan on the night of January 13, when he attempted to enter the McAlee home, died Monday. When his 15 year old daughter, who is a prisoner in the Elk county jail, was informed of her father's death she broke down and said she did not mean to shoot.

Dominick Nemura, found shot to death near Girardville, Pa., Sunday, was a victim of the Black Hand, declares the man's wife. She says her husband incurred the enmity of a colony of Johnstown aliens when he assisted the police of that city in clearing up a murder. His life was threatened and in far he fled from his home only to be followed, again threatened and finally shot.

A definite policy contemplating Philippine independence within four years was approved by the Senate yesterday, Vice President Marshall casting the deciding vote in favor of the Clarke amendment to the Philippine bill directing the President to withdraw American sovereignty within a four-year period. The vote, which followed weeks of debate, was 41 to 41.

Germany is in the thoes of a sauerkraut famine and Ohio, U. S. A., plus the British navy, is partly to blame. In normal times Germany depended on Ohio for immense quantities of cabbage. The British naval embargo on German imports is therefore responsible for Germany's predicament, together with the smallness of the German cabbage crop on account of the war.

Katherine McCook Knox, member of a prominent New York family, obtained yesterday in Pittsburgh, a divorce from Hugh Smith Knox, son of P. C. Knox, former Secretary of State, Mrs. Knox charged her husband with cruel and barbarous treatment. The trouble between the pair began on their honeymoon trip. They were married December 14, 1911. During the honeymoon trip Knox charged his wife with going "out walking with some one."

Following a request filed with Secretary of State Lansing today, by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, the State Department ordered the release of all persons on board the British steamer Appam with the exception of the officers and members of the German prize crew. At the same time officials of the State Department let it be known that, although no definite decision has been reached as to the status of the vessel, she will be regarded as a prize of war.

The Rev. Dr. Henry B. Bryan, of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Cathedral, Easton, Md., through his counsel, Murray Lloyd Goldsborough, has applied for an injunction from the Circuit Court of Talbot County, enjoining Bishop William Forbes Adams of the Diocese of Easton and the trustees of Trinity Cathedral from taking possession of the deanery after February 1, as had been announced in a letter to Dr. Bryan signed by Bishop Adams.

The British steamship Woodfield fought a submarine in the Mediterranean for three hours, and was finally sunk. Eight members of the fighting crew were killed and fourteen were wounded. Survivors of the crew have arrived at Plymouth. Some of the crew who escaped from the Woodfield landed off the African coast, and were taken prisoners by the Moors. They were not released by the Moors until ransoms had been paid for them.

A. L. Artz, an insurance adjuster, whose home is in Massachusetts, was run over by the engine of the Wldon Kinston train last night and was so seriously injured that his recovery is doubtful. One leg was cut off, his arm was broken and there are internal injuries. Mr. Artz went to Weldon, N. C., to adjust a fire loss at the mill of the Wldon Lumber Co., and was walking up the track at the time of the accident.

The natural gas question was again up before the Board of Estimates in Baltimore yesterday. Rev. Dr. W. W. Davis secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, went before the Board of Estimates and gave prices people in Western Maryland and West Virginia are paying for natural gas from the fields from which it is proposed to supply Baltimore. Dr. Davis stated that the gas is sold for 25 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for domestic uses and that the price for industrial uses ranged from 9 to 11 cents. He said that in Clarksburg the price of the gas for industrial use was as low as 5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

The Dutch mail steamer Princess Juliana, voyaging from Flushing, Holland, to Tilbury-on-the-Thames has been wrecked by a mine in the North Sea. Seventy-nine of the crew and passengers, including some women were landed at Harwich. The American steamer Amega has arrived at Rochelle, France, badly damaged. The London board of trade reports that 551 persons lost their lives by the sinking of British merchant ships in January. The number of lives lost on steamers sunk by enemy warships was 410.

"WHOLE WORLD IS ON FIRE"

President Wilson Says Country Is Menaced on Western Coast

Kansas City, Feb. 3—President Wilson last night for the first time sounded a warning that peril menaced the United States from its western coast. After declaring that the whole world is on fire and that the United States might be engulfed at any time he said:

"If these flames creep in on the United States, they may creep in on both coasts. Do you know of that great sweep up the Western coast from the Canal to Alaska and that great sweep up from the Gulg of Mexico to the St. Lawrence?

"There are many good harbors and many cities that would be open to attack. Do you think that a navy that ranks fourth is enough to guard these long expanses?"

"Congress is going to ask me," said the President, at some time, "Can you get those 500,000 men for the continental army?"

Cries of "yes, yes" came up all over the building.

The President issued his warning that the need for preparation was unusually grave.

"I say to you in all solemnity," he declared," that thew is not a day to be lost—not because of any new or critical matter, but because I cannot tell what will happen in twenty-four hours.

"It does not depend upon what I may do or upon what this government may do. It depends on what foreign governments do; or what commanders of ships at sea do, or what commanders of submarines do; upon acts of blockade commanders and upon acts of scores of big and little men."

The President again paid high tribute to the navy of the United States, arousing the greatest enthusiasm.

"What is there behind the President of the United States?" he said. "In the first place there is a navy of which for my part I am very proud. But it must be increased in numbers and at once."

The President stirred the crowd when he declared, "I haven't enough men to guard the Mexican border. I haven't even enough men to keep bandits from raiding into United States territory," the president said.

President Wilson's preparedness trip is nearly at an end. Following his address here last night he left for St. Louis where he will make his last speech before returning to Washington. He will arrive in Washington Friday afternoon.

RELISHES DEADLY JELLY.

Negro Near Death for Eating Tempting Rat Bait.

Chester, Pa., Feb. 2.—"That sho' was good bread and jelly," remarked Charles Herald, a negro handy man employed about the hotel of John J. Ryan, jr., as he entered the place Monday night, smacking his lips.

The proprietor recalled the fact that bread covered liberally with poison to kill rats had been distributed at convenient points, and when Herald learned this, he actually turned pale.

The poison began to take effect about the same time, and the negro was rushed to a nearby drugstore, where antidotes and a stomach-pump were applied none too quickly, and there is a chance for his recovery.

Mrs. Emma J. Ellis, 53 years old, wife of James T. Ellis, of Portsmouth committed suicide Tuesday morning in her home by placing the tube of a gas stove between her teeth and turning the tap on with full force. Mr. Ellis had been subject, to periods of despondency, it is stated.

LEGAL NOTICES

At a Corporation Court of the City of Alexandria, continued and held at the Court house of said City on Saturday, January 15th, 1916.

Present,, Hon Louie C. Barley, Judge.

Norman A. Kraft, Complainant,
vs. IN CHANCERY
Irene Wade Kraft, defendant.

Upon the written application of the complainant, now duly made and filed in accordance with the statutes, together with the affidavit made by the complainant of the defendant's non-residence, the said affidavit stating that the last known address of the said defendant was No. 626 South Linwood Avenue, in the City of Baltimore, Maryland, and it appearing from the Sergeants return that the said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Virginia, and not within the jurisdiction of the State of Virginia, the Corporation Court of the City of Alexandria, Va., does this 15th day of January, 1916, enter the following order of publication against the said defendant.

Memo: The object of the above suit is to secure for the complainant a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant on the grounds of desertion, to extinguish the defendant's right of dower in the estate of the complainant, and for general relief.

It is ordered that the defendant appear within fifteen days after due publication hereof, and do what is necessary to protect her interests in this suit, and that a copy of this order of publication be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in the Alexandria Gazette, a newspaper printed and published in the City of Alexandria, in the State of Virginia; that a copy of said order of publication be posted at the front door of the Court house of said City on or before the next rule day, and that a copy of the same be mailed to last known address of the defendant at No. 626 South Linwood Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland, by the Clerk of this Court by registered mail.

The Habit of Taking Cold

With many people taking cold is a habit but fortunately one that is easily broken. Take a cold sponge bath every morning when you first get out of bed—not ice cold, but a temperature of about 90 degrees F. Also sleep with your window up. Do this and you will seldom take cold. When you do take cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and get rid of it as quickly as possible. Obtainable everywhere.
